

Bill Bucher -

After spending time with both candidates, my clear preference is for Trevor. He is much more familiar with the issues behind the budget numbers, and deducing what is going on from the numbers. He is comfortable speaking to audiences, and can express complicated concepts with just a few words. His strengths more accurately match what we need, and his experience with the PCO is almost exactly like what he will find here. OVR

While I agree that Michael ~~is~~ would be adequate, Trevor has a greater potential to inspire and motivate our donors
with his understanding of our programs
and his passionate support for classical music. I think his plan to be in the office only 2 days/week is ~~an~~ easily workable with volunteers helping in the office.

Thanks!

I did not meet Michael.

Trevor was very impressive & personable. Good experience & fabulous ideas to engage the community - many of which are original.

I would only say (from prior experience) that it is HIGHLY important to have "feet on the ground" when the job involves working with media and the public. This cannot be accomplished as effectively from a distance. Therefore,

I would lean toward someone who plans to be in Salisbury daily.

Michael - was impressive with his expertise with fundraising, and the workings of an orchestra. Also, he could be heard daily.

Trevor - was over the top with ability to connect - very comfortable with coming over to anyone and discussing the orchestra and his experiences. So creative - lots of great ideas! I think Salisbury would love

him? I did.
